Lend Lease is closer to selling its stake in Barangaroo South amid speculation a full sale or a joint venture partner is about to sign a deal.

This was prompted by news that Lend Lease is preparing its balance sheet for a sell-down of its stake in the Barangaroo office towers, with a proposal to allocate $400.5 million to its subsidiary, Lend Lease Trust, in a new capitalisation plan.

Property agents have said they understand Lend Lease is talking with domestic and international investors. An announcement was expected "sooner rather than later".

The plan requires shareholder approval at the Lend Lease annual shareholder meeting, scheduled for November 14 in Sydney.

The agents said super funds such as ISPT, Cbus and UniSuper would be interested parties, with the Singaporean, Chinese, British and German funds competing, to take advantage of the weaker Australian dollar and low interest rates.

If the reallocation proposal is passed next month, the Lend Lease Trust could look to invest directly.

Lend Lease chief executive Steve McCann has repeatedly said every asset of the company is potentially for sale. He has made it clear that Lend Lease's remaining interest in Barangaroo is on the market.

In the notice of meeting it says that in 2012 Lend Lease allocated $500 million to the wholesale Lend Lease International Towers Sydney Trust. This resulted in it holding a 25 per cent indirect stake in the commercial towers, known as Tower 2 and Tower 3, at the Barangaroo South development in Sydney.

"The Lend Lease group intends to introduce co-investors into Tower 1 at an appropriate time ... Lend Lease Trust may invest in Tower 1 in the future," the notice of meeting says.

In April, Lend Lease unveiled an agreement to reduce its co-investment in the International Towers Sydney Trust from 25 per cent to 15 per cent via a sale to international pension fund APG. "Also in April 2014, the company announced that the Lend Lease group will commence the development and funding of 100 per cent of the Barangaroo South commercial building known as Tower 1, via existing capital sources."
