Overnight market action with latest New York figures.

EQUITIES

NEW YORK - U.S. stocks mostly advanced on Monday as investors exercised caution over valuations after a run of mixed economic data, but another drop in bond yields helped support equities.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 1.93 points or 0.01 percent, to 16,489.38. The S&P 500 gained 4.83 points or 0.26 percent, to 1,882.69. The Nasdaq Composite added 29.79 points or 0.73 percent, to 4,120.38.

TOKYO - Japan's Nikkei share average dropped on Monday, extending losses from Friday as a stronger yen made investors risk averse, while sentiment was also hurt by weak China shares on concerns about slower growth in the world's second-biggest economy.

The Nikkei ended 0.6 percent lower at 14,006.44.

The broader Topix declined 0.8 percent to 1,150.07, while the new JPX-Nikkei Index 400 slipped 0.7 percent to 10,491.39.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK - The dollar fell to its lowest in more than three months against the yen on Monday, pressured by a drop in U.S. Treasury yields that may be due to persistent uncertainty about U.S. economic growth prospects.

The dollar fell as low as 101.11 yen, the weakest since early February. It was last at 101.18, down 0.3 percent. The greenback's break below 101.20 yen was the first time since November that it has traded lower than its 200-day moving average, which was at 101.17 yen.

TREASURIES

NEW YORK - U.S. Treasuries prices edged higher on Monday on sentiment that bond yields could hit multi-month lows again, leading investors to mainly seek longer-dated bonds to avoid price losses.

U.S. 30-year Treasury bond prices were last up 3/32 to yield 3.34 percent, from a yield of 3.35 percent late Friday. Benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury notes were last up 3/32 in price to yield 2.507 percent, from a yield of 2.52 percent late Friday.

COMMODITIES

GOLD

NEW YORK - Gold erased initial gains to end flat on Monday as rising U.S. equities decreased bullion's appeal as a hedge, sending the metal below the key $1,300-an-ounce level.

Spot gold rose 0.1 percent to $1,293.86 an ounce by 2:01 p. m. EDT (1801 GMT), after two consecutive sessions of losses.

U.S. COMEX gold futures for June delivery settled up 40 cents by $1,293.80 an ounce, with trading volume about 20 percent below its 30-day average, preliminary Reuters data showed.

BASE METALS

LONDON - Copper hit an 11-week high on Monday on dwindling global stocks and as investors bought to cover their bets that prices would fall, though gains were still limited by concerns about slower growth in top consumer China.

Three-month copper on the London Metal Exchange closed up 0.95 percent at $6,925 a tonne, having earlier hit its highest since March 7 at $6,954 a tonne, marking a near 10 percent gain from around three-year lows hit in mid-March.

OIL

NEW YORK - U.S. oil prices rose to near one-month highs on Monday as a weak dollar prompted buying, while Brent prices fell as concerns about China's slowing economy dragged global equities down and outweighed the impact of low Libyan output.

U.S. crude for June delivery rose 82 cents to $102.84 a barrel by 1:57 p. m. EDT (1757 GMT) as the contract traded in light volume ahead of its expiration on Tuesday. It rose $1.07 to an intra-session high of $103.09 a barrel, its highest price since April 22.

Brent crude was down 12 cents to $109.63 a barrel, having climbed to an earlier intra-session high of $110.33 a barrel on the violence in Libya.
