Overnight market action with latest New York figures.

EQUITIES

NEW YORK - U.S. stocks fell in afternoon trading on Tuesday after swinging between gains and losses for most of the session as the lack of major corporate earnings or market-affecting data kept trading directionless.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 46.93 points or 0.29 percent, to 16,371.75, the S&P 500 lost 6.04 points or 0.32 percent, to 1,871.13 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 11.349 points or 0.26 percent, to 4,323.099.

LONDON - Britain's top share index steadied on Tuesday after hitting a three-week low, with some investors seeing value in beaten-down stocks, although the market remained vulnerable to further declines in the near term.

The blue-chip FTSE 100 index closed 0.06 percent lower at 6,685.52 points after falling to 6,660.59, its lowest since the middle of February. It fell in the previous two sessions on lingering tensions between Ukraine and Russia and on concerns about China's economic growth.

TOKYO - Japan's Nikkei average gained on Tuesday as investors scooped up battered commodity stocks, but trading volume was thin as caution over an economic slowdown in China and Ukraine tensions kept traders on the sidelines.

The Nikkei average ended 0.7 percent higher at 15,224.11, recouping more than a half of its losses from the previous day to edge back towards a five-week high of 15,312.60 hit on Friday.

The broader Topix index rose 0.5 percent to 1,233.21, but only 1.81 billion shares changed hands, the lowest since mid-October.
