8.58AM: Keep an eye on your local newspaper's website today. We are compiling a special on the late Gough Whitlam. Better still be a part of it and share your memories of him with kim.treasure@fairfaxmedia.com.au. Farewell until tomorrow.

8.51AM: Here's a great idea from the Bay Post. They collected social media grabs from people at the Granite Town Festival. Take a look you'll feel like you were there.

TD

8.46AM: This is handy.

A free workshop for parents and supervisors of learner drivers will be held by Roads and Maritime Services at Sapphire Coast Anglican College, Max Slater Drive at Bega on Wednesday 29 October from 5.30pm to 7.30pm. More details.

8.40AM: Former South Coast Register journo Russ Quinn has an amazing collection of surf pics. Some are very different. He called this one Cookies and Cream Jervis Bay. Thanks for sharing Russ.

8.32AM: Here's a few photos from Gough Whitlam's glory days. He died at age 98. There will be a private cremation and a public memorial service. See the photos.

8.29AM: Into fishing? Check out the catch of the day from Bega, only in The Fish Files.

8.24AM: From pop/punk to rock and heavy metal, the region's musicians raised funds for motor neurone disease research at Kiama on Friday night.

Instead of dumping buckets of ice water on one another, the Rock 4 Regal charity concert used music to join the fight against the disease. Full story.

8.16AM: I just heard former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam has died at age 98.

8.12AM: This is the ultimate fancy dress outfit.

8.02AM: Lady Gaga just bought a $27 million pad by the beach. Not bad for a 28-year-old. Full story.

7.57AM: Anyone see that special report on the ice drug problems in regional Australia. It was a real eye-opener. In case you missed it here's an earlier story South Coast papers ran of a local mother's heartbreaking tale. Ice: A Shoalhaven mother's story

7.52AM: Time will tell, but for now check out Bega District News' story on changes to Southern NSW Medicare Local.

Despite job uncertainty, Southern NSW Medicare Local CEO Kathryn Stonestreet has welcomed the Federal Government's long awaited announcement of geographical boundaries for the new Primary Health Networks.

Federal Minister for Health Peter Dutton announced the boundaries for 30 Primary Health Networks across Australia last week. Full story.

7.44AM: Come on girls get involved. The Milton Showgirl competition is calling for more entrants. Full story.

7.38AM: Kiama council plans to buy the 3.3-hectare Kiama Hospital site from the Illawarra Shoalhaven Local Health District and build a new nursing home and hostel for the council's Blue Haven aged care facility, replacing the current Havilah Place nursing home and hostel. Find out more here.

7:33AM: The inquest into the suspected death of Eden grandmother Sylvia Pajuczok in December 2008 has resumed in Bombala with three witnesses giving evidence on Monday morning.

In an opening address before Magistrate Mark Douglass, Senior Counsel Ian Bourke told the court that the evidence at the Sydney hearings last year did not support the theory that Ms Pajuczok had committed suicide or had "wandered off". Full story.

7:28AM: Police seized knives from two ACT men after a violent disturbance at Malua Bay Bowling and Recreation Club on Friday night.

A 26-year-old man and 29-year-old man were searched at a Eurobodalla club.

Both had knives seized. They will receive criminal infringements for custody of a knife in a public place. Full story.

7:23AM: Animal love awww.

7:19AM: Oh guess what I found yesterday... cicadas. Yep they're back already. After last year's ear-splitting effort I thought we were going to get seven years off. Keep an eye on your local paper's website today. I'll see if I can rustle up some more information about the coming cicada season.

7.15AM: Are you bush fire ready? If you didn't get ready on Get Ready Weekend now is the time to make a plan to stay and defend or leave if a fire approaches your property. For help with your bushfire survival plan visit the NSW RFS website at www.rfs.nsw.gov.au or call Shoalhaven Fore Control Centre on 4424 4424 or download the MyFirePlan app for your smart phone. Full story.

Roads are open and clear.

Passengers travelling on the 5:31am Goulburn to Campbelltown train are advised to allow an additional 25 minutes travel time due to a freight train that required mechanical repairs at Moss Vale earlier.

Good morning. Need a national news snapshot first thing? Well, we have you covered.

Monday night's interview with The Bachelor's Blake Garvey and Louise Pillidge on The Project was flagged as "the gift that keeps on giving" - and it most certainly is.

The Project's Carrie Bickmore travelled to Thailand, spending just four-and-a-half hours in the country to interview Garvey and his new love about their burgeoning relationship.

But, that's not all - there's even more to come tonight with his jilted fiancée Sam Frost and runner-up Lisa Hyde being dragged into the mix to keep fanning the flames of what has inadvertently turned into Ten's biggest TV story of the year. Read more.

6.58AM: PORT MACQUARIE: The power of social media will fuel a campaign aimed to build visitor numbers from the Central Coast to the Tweed.

Some of Australia's leading travel writers, passionate community advocates and the regional tourism industry will share their experiences with a broad audience during the #mylegendarydrive social media campaign.

A team of travel writers will visit major destinations along the Pacific Drive, posting across the social media platforms of Facebook, Instagram and Twitter and the Legendary Pacific Coast website. More here.

6.55am: TAMWORTH: The highly addictive drug ice is sinking its claws deeper into Tamworth's underbelly, driving up crime and sparking a dramatic increase in the number of used syringes being found on public land.

Workers on the frontline fear the problem could become an epidemic to rival the heroin boom of the 1980s unless drug services and education are bolstered in the region.

It comes as the community of Moree debates whether to establish a legal injection centre in the town. Read more.

6.50am: GOULBURN: Councillors have ignored the advice of the Roads and Maritime Service in a move set to cost the State Government more than two million dollars.

They have opted in favour of a straight through building alteration to Lansdowne Bridge " a 1902 De Burgh truss structure destined for the scrap heap.

Their decision could culminate in the temporary closure of Forbes Street and increase the Roads and Maritime Service"s bill to the tune of $2.2 million.

The historic structure, which joins Eastgrove to South Goulburn over Mulwaree Ponds, has been in council's cross-hairs since 2007. More here.

6.45am: ILLAWARRA: He is the blond-haired, blue-eyed larrikin who usually spends his boundless energy tackling big kids on the footy field, hoping to one day follow in the footsteps of his famous cousin, Greg Inglis.

But all of that changed for Corey Carlson eight days ago, when the outgoing nine-year-old was hit by a truck as he rode along a Koonawarra street with his cousin, Joel, on Sunday evening.

Since then he has been confined to his bed in Sydney Children's Hospital's intensive care unit, lying in an induced coma with a machine to help him breathe, unaware of the never-ending parade of family members visiting his bedside. Read Corey's story here.

6.40am: NEWCASTLE: Fracking could begin at AGL's Gloucester pilot project as early as today.

AGL delivered hydraulic fracturing equipment to its Waukivory pilot coal seam gas project site in the early hours of Monday morning, escorted by NSW Police.

A spokesperson for AGL confirmed the equipment had arrived at the 13-well site.

In a letter to residents, AGL said it was finalising construction work for the next phase of its program, which involved hydraulic fracture stimulation of four wells. Read more.

6.35am: MAITLAND: Police have found a missing East Maitland man safe and well at Muswellbrook.

Guy Ritchie, aged 32, was last seen at his home on Knoll Crescent around 3pm Saturday.

When he didn't show up at a close relative's birthday, family called police. More here.

6.30am: DUBBO: The safety of Dubbo residents could be compromised by the number of dimly-lit areas in the city, the Dubbo Ratepayers and Residents Association (DRRA) has said.

Merrilyn Mulcahy, the president of the DRRA, said there were a number of areas about Dubbo that either did not have enough street lights or where the lights were faulty.

"Statistics show one in six street lights are out in Dubbo," she said.

Ms Mulcahy said poorly-lit areas could have dire consequences for residents and visitors. Read more.

6.25am: NOWRA: The Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB) has launched an investigation into a light plane crash west of Nowra on Thursday afternoon.

A 22-year-old man made a forced landing in a 1970s Cessna 206 around 33km west of the Nowra airfield, in bushland near Touga in the Morton National Park.

The initial investigation report states during cruise, the aircraft engine malfunctioned, the pilot broadcast a mayday call and activated the emergency beacon prior to conducting a forced landing, during which the aircraft hit vegetation. More here.

6.20am: TAS: Tasmania has the highest proportion of patients waiting more than a year for surgery out of all states and territories, according to new figures.

The Australian Institute of Health and Welfare elective surgery waiting times report for the 2013-2014 financial year found that Tasmanian hospital waiting times had increased by almost 10 days.

The report comes as acting Tasmanian Health Organisation North chief executive Helen Bryan meets with unions to discuss budget savings suggestions.

There are fears that nursing positions are under threat at Beaconsfield, Campbell Town, Deloraine and George Town. Read more.

6.15am: WHYALLA: A man accused of murdering a Whyalla woman in July last year allegedly stomped on her face and chest repeatedly after a "blood-shedding event" in the spa bath of the deceased's family home.

Crown prosecutor Mark Norman told the Supreme Court in Adelaide on Monday that forensic evidence would be presented to put Bevan Brougham at the scene of the crime at the time Dianne Rogan died.

He alleged that Brougham, who has pleaded not guilty before Justice John Sulan, had been in the spa when he first attacked the deceased and continued to assault her in the garden "stomping on the deceased's face and chest". Read more.

6.10am: WAGGA: "He asked us 'do you want to die?' and I said no, not really".

It was the Macca's run that turned ugly for three Wagga friends who were threatened with knives and had their ute stolen from the car park of the fast food chain's Fox Street store at the weekend.

Just hours before the horrific ordeal unfolded, about 12.15am on Sunday, the trio had celebrated a friend's 20th birthday and visited the Victoria Hotel for a couple of drinks.

The designated driver of the Holden Rodeo ute had stopped so they could grab some food when three figures were seen lurking around the Edward Street side of the car park. More here.

6.05am: BOMBALA: The inquest into the suspected death of Eden grandmother Sylvia Pajuczok in December 2008 resumes in Bombala this morning.

In an opening address before Magistrate Mark Douglass yesterday, Senior Counsel Ian Bourke told the court that the evidence at the Sydney hearings last year did not support the theory that Ms Pajuczok had committed suicide or had "wandered off".

Mr Bourke said the evidence pointed to her having met with foul play on or around December 23 or 24, 2008.

6.00am: REGIONAL: Let's start your day with a spin around Fairfax newspaper front pages today. Click here.

" Michael Cheika has accepted a three-year offer to take on the Wallabies coaching job left vacant by the resignation of Ewen McKenzie.

A source close to Cheika confirmed he would take up the deal and was keen to bring in Stephen Larkham as an assistant coach and Michael Foley to work with the forwards.

A smiling Cheika, dressed in a Waratahs tracksuit top and black jeans, confirmed the offer when he spoke to the media out the front of Waratahs headquarters at Moore Park. "It's a pretty humbling experience to be asked to be involved in something like that, but we'll see what happens," Cheika said. More here.

" Non-profit community groups are being forced to pay hundreds of dollars a week in rent, throwing their viability into doubt, as the NSW government abandons "peppercorn rent" agreements that have been in place for decades.

In the latest example, the Darling House aged care home at Millers Point has been informed that a $5-a-week rent agreement struck more than 20 years ago will be scrapped, forcing the facility to close and leaving residents "stunned".

The Department of Family and Community Services rents about 1200 properties to non-profit organisations, many on peppercorn rents. It has confirmed it intends to fulfil a direction by Treasury that "market values " be realised" on the lease of the assets " a move critics have described as "cruel". Read more.

" Senior academics at the University of Sydney are waiting in suspense at the prospect of being named as recipients of racist and sexist emails that were sent by English Professor Barry Spurr.

Numerous academics at the University of Sydney were among recipients of Professor Spurr's insulting emails, which branded Chancellor Belinda Hutchinson as an "appalling minx" and Prime Minister Tony Abbott as an "Abo lover", and mocked an apparent sexual assault victim.

While the university has suspended Professor Spurr pending an investigation, the online journal New Matilda is weighing up the "public interest" in naming university staff on his email trail. Read more.

" A magistrate has questioned the basis of a defence by an American businessman hired and then sacked by Myer on his first day, after it found he had allegedly falsified his credentials, to charges that include obtaining a financial advantage by deception.

Andrew Flanagan was appointed earlier this year by Myer as group general manager of its strategic and business development.

But Mr Flanagan, 46, of Glen Waverley, was dismissed after Myer announced he had falsified his CV and references to get the job. Full story here.

" Agriculture Minister Barnaby Joyce, who has promised to defend the interests of family farms against threats from mining companies and supermarket giants, has risked alienating some rural landowners with an ambitious dam-building proposal.

Releasing a federal government green paper on agricultural competitiveness, Mr Joyce described working the land as an "inherently noble and good occupation," and said the government wanted to help farmers get better returns. For a farmer to get "between 10 and 15 per cent of the final price when they've done the majority of the work is inherently unfair," he said. More here.

" Even before a formal announcement, the deal for Australia to help Iraq battle the so-called Islamic State which now controls swaths of Iraq and Syria, drew sharp criticism from forces allied to the Baghdad government.

As Foreign Minister Julie Bishop was finalising the deal for Australian Special Forces to be deployed in Iraq to "advise and assist the government of Iraq in building up the capacity of the Iraqi security forces", it was condemned by senior figure in three of the Shiite volunteer militias that now prop up the Iraqi Army on the battlefield. " The Australian Federal Police are poised to seize assets of corrupt Chinese officials within weeks, in an unprecedented joint operation with their Chinese counterparts.

In an exclusive interview with Fairfax Media, Commander Bruce Hill, the manager of the AFP's operations in Asia, has confirmed Australia has agreed to assist China in the extradition and seizure of assets of corrupt officials who have fled to Australia with illicit funds running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The joint operation will make their first forfeiture of assets within weeks, having agreed on a priority list of alleged economic fugitives who have taken residence in Australia " identified by Beijing as one of the most popular outlets for corrupt Chinese money.

Among the suspects identified by the AFP are naturalised Australian citizens and permanent residents who for years have laundered money under the guise of being genuine investment or business migrants from China. More here.

" A Tasmanian Devil in a US zoo was killed when a block of asphalt was thrown at it this week.

Jasper the devil died when the asphalt crushed his head at the Albuquerque Bio Park Zoo, New Mexico.

Police so far believe Jasper may have been hit by the thrown piece of asphalt on Tuesday afternoon and retreated to a log in his enclosure, where he died.

His body was discovered Wednesday morning, US time and an autopsy found the devil's skull had been fractured. Read more.

" Tony Abbott met the new Indonesian President Joko Widodo late on Monday night and personally invited him to Brisbane to the G20 meeting next month, but received a non-committal reply.

As foreshadowed in an exclusive interview with Fairfax Media recently, Mr Joko is waiting for advice before deciding to make the trip to Australia on November 15 and 16. Read more.

" Did you miss this yesterday? If his record 11 world titles haven't convinced you he's one of the world's best surfers, then take a look at Kelly Slater's latest incredible acrobatics in the waves off Portugal.

Competition in the Moche Rip Curl Pro Portugal had been called off for the day on Friday, but that didn't stop Slater, 42, from paddling out into the break where he once again proved his prowess with a massive manoeuvre that was captured on camera. One surfing magazine has described it as "arguably the best air ever made". Take a look.

Velma 'Aunty Val' Mulcahy grew up on the Aboriginal mission at La Perouse in the 1930s under Protection Law.

Her childhood is incomprehensible to today's youth.

"If I go into a school and tell a kid that we never had electricity or Nintendo games and we never had bathrooms in our little house they can't believe it," she said.

"Our little house was a three-bedroom fibro cottage built back-to-front with the fibro on the inside and the frame on the outside.

"We had one tap outside and we were real up-to-date Koori's because we had a pull chain toilet up the back."
